

Magazine Editorial

KINESIOLOGY SCHOOLS AUSTRALIA

Finally the course has arrived where you learn to help yourself, help others and succeed both financially and emotionally. Kinesiology Schools Australia is pleased to announce the Nationally recognised Certificate IV in Kinesiology (HLT-42807) and the Diploma in Kinesiology (HLTS-1507) is available.

As the largest Registered Training Organisation specialising in Kinesiology, with seven campuses around Australia, Kinesiology Schools Australia offers outstanding training accredited by the Australian Quality Training Framework and the International College of Professional Kinesiology Practice.

This training is of the highest quality available and is taught in an integrated 'flowing' system with an effective protocol proven over time.

This program was first taught in the early 1980's and was re-written and upgraded in 2000 to make learning easier. The techniques and protocol are second to none, and take students from the basics to Practitioner level with the Certificate IV in Kinesiology, then to the advanced techniques and knowledge of the Diploma in Kinesiology.

The new qualifications add the business and research skills missing from previous Kinesiology courses, which endows Kinesiology Practitioners with a new level of professionalism.

This course is ideal for those returning to work or searching for an exciting and rewarding career and those leaving school entering the workforce. In fact, it's of benefit to anyone interested in helping others, in making a deep and long-lasting difference.

Kinesiology is a versatile health modality with origins covering a range of backgrounds combining aspects of Counselling, Nutrition, Acupuncture, Physiotherapy, as well as research from Osteopathy and Chiropractic to name a few.

Kinesiology truly is an exceptional modality with a grand future. Kinesiology has grown since the 1960's from humble beginnings in Chiropractic/ Applied Kinesiology to the superb therapy it is now. It attracts more and more Australians searching for an effective complementary modality.

Kinesiology uses gentle yet direct neurological feedback (via the brain and central nervous system, through muscle/energy monitoring) to direct the practitioner to help a person return to balanced health. Using a variety of techniques, Kinesiology will detect and correct imbalances whether emotional, physical, environmental, chemical or other. If you have not previously experienced Kinesiology, make it a priority now and see how it can help you.

Each year with more and more people experiencing Kinesiology and requesting assistance, the need for quality Practitioners increases. This makes PKP Kinesiology a fantastic opportunity for potential practitioners. A financially and emotionally rewarding career is here waiting for motivated people to take up the challenge and help Australians not only achieve better health but a better quality of life.

All Kinesiology Schools Australia lecturers have a high level of training and must be experienced Professional Kinesiology Practitioners (before they are invited to the International College of Professional Kinesiology Practice for Faculty training). This ensures students receive high quality training from nationally and internationally recognised lecturers.

What more could you ask for .. Quality lecturers, and quality courses from a quality training organisation specialising in the field.

Don't hesitate to contact your Kinesiology Schools Australia campus and find out how you can be part of this exciting and rewarding career: Melbourne Campus ph. 03 9819 6835.